From Rep. Bob Menendez, House Democratic Caucus Chair:

“Democratic leadership in Congress has been responsible for the District’s progress toward full democracy – Home Rule, the Voting Rights Amendment, and the floor vote in the Committee of the Whole (withdrawn by the Republicans). If there were any reasonable chance of obtaining a House vote on the floor for D.C., the minority – which has long supported votes in the Senate and the House – would be first in the line….Recent editorials in both of Utah’s major daily papers reinforced concerns about the Davis bill. Like minority members in Congress, both papers believe D.C. should have a House vote. Both papers said, however, that the balance intended by the Davis bill would be virtually impossible unless steps were taken to assure that result…Moreover, Speaker Dennis Hastert has been explicit about the six principles that guide his decisions in the House. Principle #5, he said, is that unless forced by the majority, he will not ‘abandon my party’s position under any circumstances…. I do not feel comfortable scheduling any controversial legislation unless I know we have the votes on our side first’ [emphasis added]. One of Utah’s representatives has figured out that because of population growth, Utah no longer needs the Davis bill, a calculus not lost on his leadership. When opportunities have opened to move forward for full democracy for the District, Democrats have been there first. Most recently, D.C.’s historic vote in the Committee of the Whole on most House business, the first ever floor vote, was a major step forward. I challenge the Republican House majority to return the vote they took. Be assured that the minority will join the majority whenever they are ready to use their majority in all three branches to go the rest of the way.”

—ADAPTED FROM A REPLY TO A WASHINGTON POST EDITORIAL

From a Member of the Majority Leadership on the Davis Bill:

“No way — that would be turning over control of the federal government to D.C.”

Norton & Sen. Lieberman Introduce D.C.’s Voting Rights Bill in House & Senate

Congresswoman Norton and Sen. Joe Lieberman listen to Andy Shallal, a D.C. businessman born in Iraq, who spoke at a Senate news conference introducing her voting rights bill. Shallal said, “People like me of Iraqi ancestry … are entitled and encouraged to vote in the Iraq elections. But I am an American citizen … in … a city denied voting rights. I cannot escape the irony.” Sen. Lieberman, the primary Senate sponsor said, “This bill would make us the fully representative democracy we claim to be.”

Speeds up the due date for the plan to one year after the bill passes.

Norton Leads Opposition to Reactionary Judges by Black Members

As Congressional Black Caucus Chair for Judicial Nominations, Norton led the CBC effort in Congress against California Supreme Court Justice Janice Rogers Brown and former Alabama Attorney General William Pryor. She said that these two were “wholly unacceptable because of their records on racial and ethnic discrimination and on federal laws and federal court rulings that have been responsible for the progress of Blacks and Hispanics in our country.” Justice Brown has rejected the civil rights remedies Congress has enacted and the courts have approved. Judge Pryor has been the country’s leading opponent of the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

Norton speaks at a Senate news conference about her opposition to the judicial nominations with Black Members and Senate Minority Leader Harry Reid.

Norton Gets Walter Reed/Bolling AFB Hearing Moved to D.C.

The Congresswoman is leading D.C.’s uphill battle to keep Walter Reed Army Medical Center here. Norton is organizing the hearing on the Walter Reed closing and job losses at Bolling Air Force Base and the Naval District, usually a task for the senior Senator from a state. She negotiated with BRAC Commissioners and staff to move the hearing to D.C., first from Baltimore, and then from Virginia.

Norton, with USAF Gen. Lloyd Newton (Retired), a Commissioner on the Base Realignment and Closure Commission (BRAC), comments about her findings following a site visit to Walter Reed.

40% cut in Benefits for the average wage earner and survivors.

Middle-Class Benefit Cuts: 70% of future retirees would face benefit cuts, even if they had no private account.

Double cut for private account holders: A privatization reduction in benefits to repay Social Security for funds diverted to private accounts PLUS the 40% cut in benefits for 70% of earners.

Effect on Seniors: Loss of $6 trillion to privatization over 20 years would reduce amount now in the Social Security Trust Fund and cast doubt on promise of no cut for today’s Seniors.
